Cover Photograph by Keith Baker: In 2013, the Jack Capon Villa project opened 19 units for very low income individuals with disabilities on a former City of Alameda parking lot. The project exemplifies Alameda’s commitment to housing for special needs residents, and its long history of successfully creating housing through partnerships. This project is the result of a partnership between the City of Alameda, the Alameda Housing Authority Satellite Affordable Housing Associates and Housing Consortium of the East Bay.
1. Introduction

In order to ensure that the State is able to house its growing population, every jurisdiction in California must have a General Plan, and every General Plan must contain a Housing Element. This Housing Element is the City of Alameda’s blueprint for meeting its housing needs, including housing affordable to very-low, low and moderate-income families, in a manner that supports the City’s goals and policies, for the period of January 31, 2015, through January 31, 2023. This Element was prepared in conformance with State of California requirements.

A. Purpose

Alameda’s motto is “A City of Homes and Beaches,” which captures the importance of housing in this unique city. The City's ability to preserve and expand its housing stock and housing opportunities is central to its ability to achieve the goals of the General Plan and the General Plan's environmental, climate action, transportation, historic preservation, and economic development policy objectives.

The Housing Element provides policy direction for making decisions pertaining to housing services and regulations, and sets forth policies, programs, and schedules promoting the preservation, improvement, and development of diverse housing types for a diverse range of household types and incomes in concert with the City’s housing and other policy objectives.

B. Organization

This Housing Element is organized into three main sections: the Introduction, the Housing Element Policy and Implementation Plan, and the Housing Element Background Report.

The Introduction includes information on the purpose of the Housing Element, the organization of the document, General Plan consistency, overview of the Regional Housing Needs Allocation (RHNA), and public participation efforts.

The Housing Element Policy and Implementation Plan sets forth the City’s goals, policies, and implementation measures that address the housing needs in Alameda.

The Housing Element Background Report contains an evaluation of the prior Housing Element and its accomplishments, an analysis of housing needs, identification of constraints to the development of housing, and resources, such as an inventory of vacant and underutilized sites, that are available for housing.

C. Major Housing Initiatives for 2015–2023

This Housing Element identifies several major initiatives for 2015–2023:

- Retooling and Improving Successful Affordable Housing Programs. The biggest challenge for the 2015–2023 period will be to find strategies and resources to retool and improve Alameda’s most successful housing programs in an era of limited public resources for affordable housing development. Finding financial resources to replace... the Redevelopment Affordable Housing “set-aside” funds eliminated by the State of California during the last period will be critical to success.

In 2012, the City of Alameda, the Alameda Housing Authority, and their non-profit partner Resources for Community Development completed work on the transformation of the former Islander Hotel into 62 units of housing for very-low and low-income Alameda households. Located within one block of the Park Street transit corridor and the Park Street business district, the project exemplifies Alameda’s commitment to transit oriented, multifamily housing.

- Transit-Oriented Housing and Sustainable Development. The focus of the next eight years will be to provide a variety of housing types for a diversity of household needs in transit- and pedestrian-oriented and mixed-used use locations, consistent with the City of Alameda General Plan, Local Action Plan for Climate Protection, and the regional Sustainable Communities Strategy, Plan Bay Area.

- Northern Waterfront Priority Development Area. These former industrial sites along the Oakland/Alameda Estuary provide important opportunities to reconnect Alameda neighborhoods to the waterfront and provide housing for a wide variety of household types.
Naval Air Station (NAS) Alameda Priority Development Area. The NAS Alameda Priority Development Area (commonly known as “Alameda Point” and “Alameda Landing”) represents the next phase of the redevelopment and reuse of the former Naval Air Station.

D. Regional Housing Needs Allocation

In July 2013, the Association of Bay Area Governments (ABAG) issued the Regional Housing Needs Allocation (RHNA). The City of Alameda was assigned a RHNA of 1,723 units. To address state, regional, and local need for affordable housing, 444 of the units are to be affordable to very low-income households, 248 of the units are to be affordable for low-income households, and 283 of the units are to be affordable for moderate-income households. The balance of the units (748) may be market rate. The City of Alameda Land Inventory, located in the Housing Resources section of the Housing Element Background Report on page 35, identifies adequate sites for over 2,000 units that are appropriately zoned to address the affordable housing demand. These identified sites provide support for state mandated requirements, but do not represent the full extent of Alameda’s available housing sites.

In 2010, the City of Alameda, the Alameda Housing Authority, and their non-profit partner Resources for Community Development completed work on Shensi Gardens, a 39-unit multifamily housing project for very-low and low-income Alameda families. The award-winning project exemplifies Alameda’s successful and ongoing efforts to transform the former Naval Air Station at Alameda into a mixed use, mixed income district.
E. General Plan Consistency

State law requires that “the general plan and elements and parts thereof comprise an integrated, internally consistent, and compatible statement of policies.” Internal consistency avoids policy conflicts and provides clear policy direction for the future improvement and development of housing within the City. The City is evaluating the consistency of this element with other chapters of the general plan as part of the update process. It will continue to maintain General Plan consistency through ongoing review and revision conducted annually thereafter.

Known for its excellent architecture and historic buildings, Alameda is also a community with a large number of well-designed multifamily buildings located in medium density residential districts.

F. Public Participation

During the preparation of the 2015–2023 Housing Element, public input was actively encouraged. In early February 2014, the City released the draft Housing Element Update for public review. The Element was posted to the City’s website and a hard copy was available for review at City Hall. Quarter page advertisements were placed in local newspapers. The Draft Housing Element was also provided to the California Department of Housing and Community Development (HCD) for review and comment.
On February 27, 2014, the Planning Board held its first public hearing on the new draft Element. At the meeting housing advocates and other interested parties submitted suggested changes and revisions to improve the document. On March 14, 2014, the City of Alameda Board of Realtors Local Government Relations Committee received a presentation and discussed the Element. On March 19, 2014, the Housing Authority Board of Commissioners held a public hearing on the draft Element and made a number of suggested changes. On April 2, 2014, the draft Housing Element was discussed at a meeting of the Alameda Chamber of Commerce Economic Development and Government Relations Committee. On April 24, 2014, the City of Alameda Board of Realtors held a special meeting to hear a presentation on the draft Housing Element and discuss its position on the Element. On April 28, 2014, the City of Alameda Planning Board held a second public workshop on the Draft Element and reviewed a number of revisions to the draft policies and programs. On June 9, 2014, the Planning Board held a final public hearing and passed a resolution recommending that the City Council adopt this Housing Element. Throughout the five month public planning process, City staff met with housing advocates, housing providers, and housing professionals to discuss potential policy initiatives and programs. These meetings and conversations were instrumental to the successful completion of the Housing Element and included input and advise from:

- Renewed Hope, Housing Advocacy
- ECHO Housing, Housing Advocates
- East Bay Housing Organizations (EBHO)
- HOMES, Housing Advocacy
- Alameda Development Corporation
- Alameda HOME Team
- Alameda Board of Realtors
- Alameda Chamber of Commerce

2. Housing Policy and Implementation Plan

A. Housing Goals, Policies, and Programs

Alameda’s housing goals, policies, and implementation programs for the planning period 2015-2023 will guide the City’s future housing development decisions, housing programs, strategies, and expenditures. The following constitutes the City of Alameda Housing Policy and Implementation Plan.

Goal #1: Provide housing services and opportunities to support, maintain, and enhance Alameda’s diverse community and excellent quality of life and provide for the housing needs of Alameda’s future residents and regional housing needs.

Policy HE-1: Support public and private efforts to increase the supply of housing in Alameda consistent with the City’s environmental, climate action, transportation, historic preservation, and economic development policy objectives.

Program 1.1: Annual Review of Policies and Programs: Hold an annual public hearing in February or March before the Planning Board to review and consider improvements to the development review process and requirements to ensure that processes and requirements do not create unnecessary costs or delays and increase the cost of housing in Alameda. The review shall include an assessment of at least: inclusionary housing (AMC Section 30-16), density bonus (30-17), multifamily overlay (30-18), Measure A (30-52), Design Review (30-36), and off-street parking (30-7). The review will address impacts on housing costs, adequate incentives, and flexibility of the ordinances. The review will also include a review of the Annual Progress Report on the Housing Element implementation in the format required by the California Department of Housing and Community Development as defined by Government Code Section 65400(a)(2)(B). Based upon the annual review and the Annual Progress Report, the Planning Board will make a recommendation to the City Council recommending any changes to the City’s development regulations necessary to support Housing Element implementation or immediately institute any changes in the Planning Board or City staff procedures or processes that are within the jurisdiction of the Planning Board or staff.
