2 INTRODUCTION

REQUEST FOR PROPOSAL

Oxford County Sheriff's Office Staffing Analysis Study

Oxford County is issuing this Request for Proposal [RFP] to engage a qualified, independent consultant to conduct a comprehensive workforce and staffing analysis of the Oxford County Sheriff's Office. The purpose of this study is to evaluate whether the Sheriff's Office has appropriate manpower levels to effectively meet its current operational obligations, statutory responsibilities, and public safety demands across the County.

The Sheriff's Office has formally expressed concerns about current staffing levels and requested additional personnel to meet operational demands. In recognition of the importance of public safety and responsible planning, the Oxford County Commissioners are seeking an independent, professional workforce study. The intent is to obtain an objective and comprehensive evaluation of staffing requirements to help inform organizational structure decisions and guide future funding considerations.

Oxford County is geographically and operationally diverse. The Sheriff's Office provides law enforcement services across three primary patrol zones, each with distinct call volumes, travel requirements, and service demands. In addition to countywide responsibilities, the Sheriff's Office provides contracted services to two municipalities, Bethel and Mexico, which operate under specific manpower and contractual limitations. These contractual obligations must be incorporated into any meaningful staffing analysis.

3 BACKGROUND

Oxford County is in western Maine, east on the New Hampshire border. York County borders the south; Cumberland, Androscoggin, and Franklin Counties to the east; and Canada to the north.

The population of Oxford County is estimated at 57,618 persons, covering approximately 2,176 square-miles.

Oxford County consists of a mix of municipalities and unorganized territories that form the County's boundaries. The County is comprised of 34 incorporated towns, plantations, and one city. Most residents live where local governments provide municipal services. Some communities maintain their own police departments: Fryeburg, Norway, Oxford Paris and Rumford. While others rely on the Oxford County Sheriff's Office for law enforcement services. In addition, certain municipalities, including Bethel and Mexico, contract with the Sheriff's Office for dedicated policing services.

Oxford County also includes several unorganized territories that do not have municipal governments and are administered primarily by the State of Maine. While these areas have relatively small populations, they encompass large geographic areas and are served primarily by the Sheriff's Office. This combination of municipal jurisdictions, contract service areas, and sparsely populated rural territories creates a diverse operational environment that must be considered when evaluating staffing levels, workload distribution, and patrol coverage requirements.

4 PROJECT DESCRIPTION

In recent years, the two collective bargaining units representing the Patrol Bureau and the Detective Bureau were consolidated into a single union structure. This organizational change has improved administrative and operational coordination flexibility. It also provides an opportunity to conduct a unified workforce study that evaluates staffing across functional divisions within a consistent labor framework, rather than analyzing separate bargaining units with potentially competing structural considerations.

The County seeks a consultant with demonstrable expertise in public safety workforce analysis who can perform a comprehensive, defensible evaluation of current staffing levels relative to operational demands.

The County anticipates that the selected consultant will assess staffing adequacy using industry-recognized methodologies, incorporating quantitative data [calls for service, response times, caseloads, shift coverage, overtime utilization, leave patterns, attrition rates, and geographic deployment] as well as qualitative factors [supervisory span of control, specialized assignments, investigative demands, court obligations, training requirements, and community policing expectations].

While numerous analytical components may be considered within the study, the outcome should center on those elements that directly inform manpower sufficiency, operational sustainability, and fiscal responsibility. The County may refine or narrow certain secondary evaluation components if they are evaluated to have relevance to the primary objective.

RFP FOR PROPOSAL

Oxford County Sheriff's Office Workforce Analysis Study

The final product must provide:

- A clear evaluation of manpower sufficiency
- Identification of any operational gaps or inefficiencies
- An analysis of workload distribution across patrol zones
- An assessment of contract town service obligations relative to allocated manpower
- Recommendations, if any, for adjusted staffing levels or deployment models

The County emphasizes that this study is not intended to predetermine the need for additional staffing, nor is it intended to validate existing levels without scrutiny. Rather, it is intended to provide an independent, objective foundation upon which County Commissioners can responsibly base future policy and budget decisions.

Oxford County is committed to transparency, fiscal prudence, and the long-term sustainability of its public safety services. By undertaking this workforce study, the County seeks to ensure that staffing decisions are informed by empirical data, best practices, and defensible analysis rather than anecdote or assumption.

5 PROJECT OBJECTIVES

Purpose

The study shall objectively evaluate whether current staffing levels, deployment practices, and organizational structure adequately support the operational, statutory, contractual, and community service responsibilities of the Sheriff's Office. The analysis must be data-driven, methodologically sound, and aligned with recognized industry standards for public safety workforce assessments.

The County seeks a final product that provides clear, defensible findings that can inform policy and budget decisions. The study is not intended to advocate for predetermined outcomes but to provide an independent evaluation of manpower sufficiency and operational sustainability.

Objectives

The primary objective of this study is to answer a fundamental question:

Does the Oxford County Sheriff's Office currently have the appropriate manpower to meet its mission, workload, contractual obligations, and public safety responsibilities in an effective, efficient, and sustainable manner?

The selected consultant shall accomplish, at minimum, the following objectives:

1. Evaluate Current Staffing Levels

Conduct a comprehensive assessment of sworn staffing levels across all operational divisions, including Patrol and Detective functions, to evaluate whether current staffing resources are sufficient to meet existing workload demands, operational responsibilities, and expected levels of service delivery.

Develop and validate a comprehensive, data-driven staffing model that incorporates time-on-task analysis, proactive policing time targets, leave and relief factors, training requirements, court appearances, prisoner transport obligations, and geographic and operational coverage requirements. The model shall identify appropriate staffing levels necessary to meet service demands, establish minimum staffing thresholds and response performance standards necessary to maintain effective and reliable law enforcement services. An evaluation of current Maine State Police practices in the area of Oxford County should be part of this analysis.

Oxford County Sheriff's Office Analysis Study

The reasonableness of the Maine State Police assisting with coverage utilizing a contract should be taken into factor and assessment of its practical use evaluated.

2. Analyze Workload and Call Demand

Examine calls for service data, case assignments, geographic service demands, seasonal fluctuations, response times, shift coverage, and other relevant workload indicators to evaluate staffing adequacy within each of the County's three patrol zones and within the contract towns.

Conduct a detailed analysis of CAD data, including calls by hour, day, season, and type; response times; backup frequency; travel time; and geographic distribution of incidents. This analysis should also include a review of reporting methodology and an assessment of data reliability.

Identify operational vulnerabilities, staffing imbalances, geographic coverage gaps that effect, response capability, case management efficiency, or the level of service provided to the community.

3. Review Organizational Structure

Conduct a comprehensive review of the Sheriff's Office governance and command structure, including the delineation of roles and responsibilities among the Sheriff's Office. The review should examine the chain of command, span of control, and whether the current command staff structure is appropriately aligned with operational responsibilities and workload demands.

Examine the current deployment model, supervisory structure, span of control, investigative assignments, and specialty functions. This evaluation should also assess the operational integration of the consolidated bargaining units to verify overall organizational efficiency and effectiveness. We do not want to be top heavy with management.

4. Evaluate Overtime and Staffing Sustainability

Provide a definitive analysis stating whether current manpower levels are appropriate, deficient, or exceed operational requirements, supported by quantitative analysis and professional rationale.

Analyze overtime trends, vacancy rates, leave usage, training requirements, recruitment and retention patterns, and evaluate whether current staffing levels are sustainable without excessive overtime dependency or workforce fatigue. Analysis of the union contract should be considered during this evaluation. Are there contract changes during negotiations that would help reduce overtime?

5. Identify Service Gaps and Operational Risks

The consultant shall identify and evaluate any operational vulnerabilities, staffing imbalances, geographic coverage deficiencies, or structural limitations that may adversely affect the effectiveness of law enforcement services provided by the Oxford County Sheriff's Office. This evaluation shall consider factors such as patrol coverage across the County's service zones, workload distribution, supervisory capacity, investigative support, and the ability to maintain consistent service levels during periods of peak demand, employee leave, training obligations, or personnel vacancies.

The analysis should also identify conditions that may pose risks to response capability, case management efficiency, or the overall quality and reliability of services delivered to the public. Where such gaps or risks are identified, the consultant should clearly describe the underlying causes, the potential operational consequences, and the conditions under which these vulnerabilities may occur.

6. Compare to Industry Standards and Peer Agencies

Benchmark Oxford County's staffing levels and workload ratios against similarly situated counties and recognized industry standards to provide meaningful context for evaluating current staffing levels.

Oxford County Sheriff's Office Staffing Analysis Study

Conduct a comparative analysis of staffing ratios, cost per capita, response performance, and clearance rates against peer counties with comparable population size, geographic characteristics, and rural–urban composition.

7. Provide Clear Staffing Evaluations

The consultant shall provide a clear and definitive assessment of whether current staffing levels are sufficient to meet the operational, contractual, and service responsibilities of the Oxford County Sheriff's Office. The analysis shall evaluate whether existing manpower levels are appropriate, insufficient, or exceed operational requirements based on documented workload, service demand, geographic coverage needs, and operational responsibilities.

This evaluation shall be supported by quantitative analysis, recognized public safety staffing methodologies, and professional judgment. The consultant shall clearly articulate the assumptions, data sources, and analytical methods used to reach these conclusions so that the findings are transparent, understandable, and defensible for policy, budgetary, and public review. Where applicable, the evaluation should also identify specific operational areas, units, or geographic zones where staffing levels may require adjustment.

8. Provide Actionable Recommendations

If the analysis indicates that adjustments to current staffing levels, deployment practices, or organizational structure are warranted, the consultant shall provide clear, practical, and actionable recommendations. Such recommendations should include specific options for implementation and may include phased staffing adjustments, redeployment of existing personnel, alternative shift configurations, reassignment of duties, civilianization of appropriate functions, or the use of technology and operational efficiencies to improve service delivery.

Each recommendation should be supported by the underlying analysis and include a discussion of operational benefits, potential impacts on service levels, and any associated fiscal considerations. Where applicable, the consultant should also identify implementation timelines, potential risks, and transitional considerations to assist the County in evaluating both the feasibility and long-term sustainability of the proposed changes. The goal is to provide the County with realistic, well-supported options that enable informed policy and budget decisions.

7.1 Study Methodology and Approach

Methodology Review and Approval

Prior to commencing detailed analysis, the selected consultant shall submit a proposed methodology outlining the analytical approach, data sources, modeling assumptions, and evaluation framework to be used in the staffing assessment. The County shall have the opportunity to review and comment on the proposed methodology to ensure that it reflects local operational conditions, available data sources, and the objectives of the study.

Stakeholder Engagement and Operational Review

The consultant shall conduct interviews or structured discussions with key stakeholders, including command staff, patrol supervisors, detectives, line personnel, and County leadership, in order to understand operational practices, policy constraints, workload realities, and organizational expectations. The consultant may also conduct observational review of operational practices, shift deployment, or communications center interaction where appropriate to validate analytical findings.

Documentation of Analytical Assumptions

All analytical models, assumptions, formulas, and calculation methodologies used to develop staffing recommendations shall be clearly documented in the final report. This documentation shall be sufficient to allow the

Oxford County Sheriff's Office Analysis Study

County to understand the basis for the consultant's conclusions and to replicate or update the model in the future if conditions change.

7.2 Consulting Firm Capabilities and Requirements

The consultant shall demonstrate its track record with similar projects by Public Safety clients over the past five [5] years.

THREE references are to be included with the proposal and, to include descriptions of similar or relevant projects, with contact information for each project. Any additional information deemed relevant should be included.

Provide the person's name that is legally authorized to bind the firm to a contract in letter form.

Proposer shall demonstrate enough staff resources to perform the task work within the required timeframe.

If any work will be in cooperation with sub-consultants, such sub-consultants shall be identified in the proposal.

7.3 OCSO Staffing Plan and Report Deliverable

The consultant shall prepare and deliver a comprehensive written report that clearly documents the methodology, data sources, analytical processes, findings, conclusions, and recommendations developed during the course of the study. The report shall present the information in a clear, organized, and professional manner that allows County leadership and the public to readily understand the basis for the study's conclusions.

The consultant shall also provide a formal presentation of the findings to the Oxford County Commissioners. The presentation should summarize the study approach, key analytical results, staffing evaluations, and any recommended operational or staffing adjustments. Both the written report and presentation must be objective, transparent, and sufficiently detailed to ensure the findings are defensible for policy consideration, budget deliberations, and public review. Where appropriate, supporting data, charts, and explanatory materials should be included to clearly illustrate the analysis and conclusions.

Summarizing

1. Prepare a draft Communications Plan document report addressing all the identified tasks
2. Identify short- and long-term implementation strategies
3. Develop a planning project timeline
4. Meet with key OCSO staff to discuss the draft report solutions, estimated budget, and implementation plan to finalize an approved final document
5. Meet with elected County officials as deemed appropriate by the OCSO project team as needed
