Amanohashidate is a pine covered sandbar that spans the mouth of Miyazu Bay in the scenic, coastal region of northern Kyoto Prefecture. Viewed from the mountains at either end of the bay, the Amanohashidate Sandbar (which roughly translates to “bridge in heaven”) looks like a pathway between heaven and earth. The scene has been admired for centuries and is ranked among Japan's three most scenic views.

Amanohashidate View Land is the best point from which to view Ama no Hashidate (Bridge to Heaven).

The line of pine trees visible from here are called the Hiriyukan (literally, “view of the flying dragon”), because they seem to be climbing into the heavens. We will take a cable car to Kasamatsu Park and enjoy the scenic view. You can try to “Matanozoki”, if you look at Amanohashidate upside down through your legs, it appears to ascend to heaven.

Funaya developed to make maximum use of the narrow strip of land between the mountains and the sea in this locality where the tidal changes are not so great. On the ground floor is a bay for a boat, a place to put equipment, and a workshop. It is here preparations for fishing trips, maintenance of nets, and drying of fish etc. takes place. Upstairs is their living quarters.
