On Memorial Day

Mass on Memorial Day: Mount Olivet Cemetery, Braidwood, 12PM. Bring a lawn chair.

Memorial Day encourages us to pause in recognition of all those who have given their lives in service to their country. It's right and fitting to acknowledge their sacrifice on our behalf, and we do so in a spirit of solemnity.

I myself come from a military family. I am the product of two grandfathers who served full careers in the Air Force, my parents having met after they both retired out of Offutt AFB near Omaha. The respect I have for those who pay the ultimate price – often in conflicts they do not fully understand or personally support – is great, in keeping with classical views on what is properly owed the State. Ultimately, true service can only come from a place of love, propelling the individual forward in action, and it's that love we honor this day.

Go to the Office. Grab a Pencil or Ten. Create Something.

I grew up in a strange time technologically speaking. We had a computer, an old Apple II Franklin clone my father must've spent thousands of dollars on in the early 80's. I learned to read at a young age because I wanted to do two things: read the paper, and play with the computer, as primitive as those old machines were.

Over time, computers improved, and my time using them grew. Through a 300bps modem (for those of you who don't remember, 300bps was painfully slow: you watched each line of text form over the telephone line in realtime, as if receiving a mystical telegraph from some other realm), I became acquainted with local bulletin board services. Eventually, I'd start using the command-line Internet, prior to the invention of the World Wide Web, when nothing was commercial and the Internet was a wide-open frontier dedicated to the exchange of ideas. By the time I was a teenager, it was difficult for my parents to peel me away from the desktop in my room. We didn't have cellphones back in those days, but we nerds still had our playground.

There's one habit I never got out of, though. One simple thing that helped me through school, even though I was always on the cusp of technology: writing things down by hand. Study after study has shown that writing things down is better for us than typing at a keyboard, whether on our phones or computers. We remember and recall what we write by hand and we form our ideas differently on paper, whereas your mileage may vary when you open up your phone app and decide to jot something down. Field Notes, a company based out of Chicago that sources most of their materials in the Midwest, carries as their slogan: "I'm not writing it down to remember it later. I'm writing it down to remember it today."

Pens. Pencils. Notebooks. Notecards. I use them all, precisely for this purpose. And what's better, ideas form. Thoughts grow when you birth them on paper, and some of them are even good enough to be typed up and stored digitally for posterity's sake later on.

So come on by the office and grab some of my pencils, just inside the door. I always have a few hundred laying around at any given time, and I'm happy to share my American-made sticks with all. In a world seeking to turn you into a passive consumer of content, buck the trend by making something, in line with God's desire for us to co-create alongside him.

In Christ,

Live The Liturgy Inspiration of the Week

Today, Jesus calls the Holy Spirit "the Advocate." The Latin for lawyer is "advocatus." Like a lawyer, the Holy Spirit defends us. The Holy Spirit guides us. So, when you're in trouble, don't forget: ask for your lawyer, and do what he tells you.

Come Holy Spirit,
Descend upon us and fill us with the fire of Your love!
Remind us of Your dreams for us,

Gospel Meditation

Encourage Deeper Understanding of Scripture

"He breathed on them and said to them, 'Receive the Holy Spirit. Whose sins you forgive are forgiven them, and whose sins you retain are retained.'" (John 20:22-23)

For those of us who go to confession regularly, there is often a familiar frustration: "Why do I keep confessing the same sins?" It can feel like a loop, cleansed but unchanged.

Pentecost reveals a hopeful perspective. When the Risen Jesus breathes on his ashamed and fearful disciples and gives them the Holy Spirit, he echoes Genesis, when God breathes life into Adam. This is not just primarily the removal of guilt, but new creation.

In confession, we receive more than forgiveness. We receive a fresh outpouring, the breath of the Spirit, and a renewed mission. Jesus does not say to us, "You're forgiven, now go back to your old life." He says, so to speak, "As the Father has sent me, so I send you." (John 20:21)

That is why penance is not just saying a few prayers. It is reorientation. It is the Spirit summoning us to live differently: with mercy and healing.

Just as Adam was sent into the world, and the Apostles were sent out after Pentecost, so too we are sent from the confessional — not just clean, but consecrated.

Pentecost Challenge: After your next confession, ask the Holy Spirit for one way you can participate in Christ's healing will for you. Then take one small, concrete step, and do not look back.

— Father John Muir

( PRACTICING ) CATHOLIC

Mini Reflection: Much of what Jesus does in his resurrected Body is extraordinary and superhuman. He's passing through locked doors. He's in two places at once. But today, he's just breathing. So we have to ask ourselves: why?

Signs of Life

If you're asthmatic, you know the phrase "as natural as breathing" doesn't always make a lot of sense.

Maybe that's because breathing isn't always natural. Sometimes, it's supernatural.

I come from a family of asthmatics. In my earliest childhood memories, my sister's nose and mouth are covered with a bulbous plastic mask connected by clear tubes to her transportable nebulizer. The machine whirs loudly as it vaporizes the medication that will open her lungs. In these memories, I watch my sister — her little eyes wide, her chest contracting and constricting with great difficulty — and wonder what it feels like.

Because I don't have asthma, and I don't think about breathing, unless I'm climbing a flight of stairs or chasing down one of my kids. It's such a utilitarian thing, breathing. It's unimpressive, unremarkable. Literally anyone can do it.

Until they can't.

Dead men don't breathe. That's what I think as I read the words of John's Gospel: "He breathed on them." (John 20:22) So much of what Jesus does in his resurrected Body is extraordinary and superhuman, making it unmistakable that here is a Body no longer playing by the rules of the physical world. He's passing through locked doors. He's in two places at once.

But today, he's just breathing.

So we have to ask ourselves: why? His Blood no longer requires oxygen. If he were asthmatic, neither bonfire nor damp night air could cause his lungs to constrict. His Flesh has been perfected.

But here we see a reality that is as spiritual as it is physical: where there is breath, there is life.

In Genesis, God breathes into dust and creates man. In today's Gospel, He breathes His Spirit onto man, and creates a Church.

— Colleen Jurkiewicz Dorman

Why do we do that?

Catholic Life Explained

Question:

Someone close to me has left the Church. How should I reach out to them?

Answer:

For many of us, this can be a challenging question. When people we love leave the Church, we may not always know how to relate to them in certain ways. Are some conversation topics off limits? Are there certain behaviors or decisions we can't support in good conscience? When someone or something is lost, Jesus shows two different attitudes in his parables.

One is actively seeking. Don't give up on this person and their life of faith. Ask them about their spiritual journey. Invite them to spend time with you in faith settings, as appropriate, and outside of them. Continue in relationship with those you love.

The other attitude Jesus shows is consistent witness in the waiting. In the parable of the Prodigal Son, the father doesn't go after the son. He waits for his return. However, the son knows his father is trustworthy. He remembers his father's fair treatment of the hired hands and knows it is safe to return, despite all he has done.

Your ability to change someone is quite small. However, you can change yourself. Make sure you consistently treat others with kindness, compassion, and respect. If your loved one wants a deeper conversation, they'll know you are a person to trust, a place to which they can return.

Sharing the Gospel

Jesus gave his friends the Holy Spirit, who would always live in their hearts. If any of them were ever sad or afraid, the Holy Spirit comforted them. If someone had sinned, they could bring healing and forgiveness. With the help of the Holy Spirit, they shared God's love with the world.
