An Angel Tree Thank You

THANK YOU for your generosity in providing Christmas gifts for children through the Lilburn Co-op and Rainbow House Angel Tree programs! We pray you found joy in sharing with those in our community. The children and parents are most grateful for your kindness.

Advent Giving Tree Update

The Food Drive at Ingles on Saturday, December 20 will NOT be held as we continue to collect items weekly for the Lilburn Co-op through our Advent Giving Tree. Especially needed are: grits, spaghetti sauce, canned veggies such as yams, collard greens, peas and carrots, and corn (corn is always needed), cake mixes, and brownie mixes.

In Scripture Today

Matthew 11:2-11

The gospel of Advent 3 responds to the gospel of Advent 2: last week John the Baptist predicted the coming judgment, and this week Jesus, also citing the prophet Isaiah, speaks of the transformative power of his ministry. Each week we hear more about what the presence of God means for the world, today and at the end of time. That coming begins here, in word and sacrament.

Isaiah 35:1-10

Sometimes in the lectionary, the first reading presents the full citation that is referred to in the gospel reading. This Sunday, the first reading is the oracle from Isaiah that Jesus cites in today's gospel reading. On Sunday, Christians praise the resurrection of Christ as just such a joyous transformation of all things. The Sunday liturgy means to celebrate that transformation.

James 5:7-10

The Old Testament and gospel readings that promise wondrous signs of the presence of the Lord are held next to this New Testament call to patience. In Advent, we join the early church in waiting, perhaps impatiently, for the coming of the Judge and for the end of suffering and evil.
