In Scripture Today

Luke 24:13-35

The Emmaus story illustrates the weekly assembly of Christians, who first search through Moses and the prophets to hear about the messiah and who then share a meal and, in so doing, recognize the risen Christ. In keeping with Luke's many parallels between the sexes, some contemporary artists depict the two disciples as a man and a woman. This Sunday in our congregations, we find Christ in the scriptures and recognize Christ at our table.

Acts 2:14a, 36-41

The miracle of the resurrection continues, as thousands of people repent, believe, and are baptized. As usual, Luke sees the purposes of this conversion to be the forgiveness of sins and the gift of the Holy Spirit. We are now this baptized community, assembling weekly for this apostolic teaching, the meal with the risen Christ, and our prayers.

1 Peter 1:17-23

According to this heavily metaphoric post-baptismal sermon, we are now the exile community that in Christ is judged, ransomed, purified, and born anew. The word grows in us each week, and the blood of Christ buys us back from the power of death.
