In Scripture Today

Matthew 10:24-39

For Matthew, one's commitment to follow the Father in heaven replaces stereotypical family values. Christian life is encountered on the cross, which believers in some way share with the crucified one.

Jeremiah 20:7-13

Jesus and the early Christian community were not the first to suffer for speaking the word of the Lord: the first reading recalls a time centuries before in Jewish history when the faithful prophet suffered for his proclamation.

Romans 6:1b-11

The lectionary now skips part of Romans 5 that is appointed during Lent and proceeds with Paul's teaching about baptism as our connection to the death of Christ. Daily we return to our baptism as the tomb of our old life and the resurrection of life in Christ.
