In Scripture Today

Luke 10:38-42

To sit at the feet of Jesus and receive the word of God is given now to us. Each Sunday we sit at table with Jesus along with Martha and Mary. Preachers are advised to avoid fantasizing about the relationship between the sisters, which disregards the point of the story.

Genesis 18:1-10a

The narrative of Abraham serving a meal to the three visitors, who are addressed as "my lord" and who then speak as one, is set next to Luke 10 because in both stories, God eats with the people and delivers a word of grace. Especially Orthodox Christians have used this story as their primary depiction of the Trinity, and in many Orthodox churches, there is an icon of this story over the great doors to the altar.

Colossians 1:15-28

This passage praises the Christ with whom the assembly now gathers at table. The guest and host of our meal is the embodied God, the creator, the reconciler, and the hope of future glory. Yet this one is the crucified Christ, for the firstborn of all creation is also the firstborn from the dead. This reading holds the divine Christ creating the universe next to Jesus eating at Martha's table.
