Shepherd's Thoughts

The prophet Isaiah sets the tone for our celebration today by proclaiming a God Who never abandons His people to confusion or fear. He announces with hope, "The people who walked in darkness have seen a great light" (Is 8-9:2). This light is not fleeting; it is a lasting promise—an enduring assurance that God remains present with us in every circumstance.

This same trust resounds in the words of the psalmist: "The Lord is my light and my salvation; whom should I fear?" (Ps 27:1). God's light is not merely an idea or a comforting thought, but a living presence that gently transforms our lives. It dispels fear, strengthens faith, and leads us towards renewed confidence in the Lord.

Saint Paul, in his letter to the Corinthians, calls our community to unity: "that there be no divisions among you, but that you be united in the same mind and purpose" (1 Cor 1:10). When Christ's light truly shines within us, it embraces us and enables us to grow. It heals brokenness, softens hardened hearts, conquers pride, and restores communion. Light does not divide; it gathers and reconciles.

In the Gospel, Matthew tells us that this great light first dawned in "Galilee of the Gentiles" (Mt 4:16)—a place considered ordinary and often overlooked. Yet it is precisely there that Jesus begins His mission and calls His first disciples. God so often chooses the ordinary moments of our lives as the setting for revealing His extraordinary grace.

Every time I hear this Gospel, I am brought back to my own "Galilee." During my First Mass in 2005, the late Monsignor Aguilar—my mentor and former parish priest—offered a gentle but profound reminder in his homily: "Fr. Rex, now that you are ordained a priest, wherever you go, whatever it takes, always remember your Galilee in life—where you were first called to follow Jesus."

Those words took on deeper meaning in 2014 when I stood by the Sea of Galilee during our pilgrimage to the Holy Land. As I sailed on the boat of Jesus, I remembered my first experience of reconciliation and the quiet moment when I told my mother that I wanted to become a priest. That was my Galilee—the place where God's light first touched my heart, a light that continues to burn within me even now.

The fullness of that call is captured in Jesus' invitation: "Come after me, and I will make you fishers of men" (Mt 4:19). Twenty years into the priesthood, and with my mother often reminding me of that moment, I continue to return to my Galilee. Every vocation—whether to priesthood, marriage, or faithful discipleship—is sustained by remembering where and how God first called us.

Each of us has a Galilee—the unique place or moment where we first encountered Christ. We must never forget the pastoral invitation of Bishop Ricken: having met Christ ourselves, we are called to share Him with others. This mission must remain alive in us, regardless of life's circumstances, for God places us where we are so that we may share in the mission of His Son with our neighbors.

Reflection Line:

Where is your Galilee—the moment when you first experienced God's light and love?

Takeaway Thought:

Remember your Galilee, and do not keep it to yourself. Let the light you received become a light you share, leading others to encounter Jesus.
