The staff at Oxley Nature Center is so pleased to invite you back to the park and Interpretive Center following the recent storms. We appreciate everyone's patience as we've been working to recover and to ensure that the trails are safe. A few things:

- Oxley will only be accessible from the North Winston Ave. entrance. Please refer to the map below.
- The North Woods trails are closed until further notice.
- Please heed the warnings on the main Oxley trail system. Problem areas are indicated by signage and caution tape.
- While access to Oxley is safe, the rest of Mohawk Park is still closed.
- Visitors need to be out of the Oxley parking lot by 5:00 p.m.

Thank you! We look forward to seeing you on the trail

Summer Lecture Series

Free and open to the public, no registration required

July 15, 1 p.m. Studying Water Health at Oxley

Join Dr. Pamela Christol, a Science Education Professor, and Dr. Nathaniel Green, an Associate Chemistry Professor at Northeastern State University in Broken Arrow, at "Get Green for Blue," an outdoor STEM camp for 8th through 10th graders. Explore water quality in Oxley's bodies of water and learn about its impact on the nature center's health.

July 22, 1 p.m. Snake Study at Oxley

Meet Jerry Morgan, a Biology major at Rogers State University and a devoted volunteer naturalist at Oxley. Jerry recently completed a two-month study on semi-aquatic snakes and their microhabitat selection. He will be sharing his findings on the vital role that snakes play in maintaining a healthy ecosystem.

July 29, 1 p.m. Dragonflies and Damselflies

Join us to learn about the fascinating world of dragonflies and damselflies from expert Brenda D. Smith, a biogeographer and conservation biologist with a special focus on these insects.
