Thalabah Merino Stud was first registered in 1992. Prior to then, the Williams family, under the leadership of the late John Williams with his wife Marion, led the field in the fine medium wool stud industry for many years with the highly successful Koonwarra Merino stud.

Thalabah Merino Stud was originally based on a selection of productive ewes from the Thalaba property.

Over the years, sires from well-known NSW studs have been judiciously introduced with the use of home bred sires.

In more recent times we have introduced what we believe to be impact sires which have clicked well with our Thalabah ewe base.

Eight years ago, Thalabah registered a Poll Merino stud. Genetics with ram purchases from Jolly Jumbuck, Alfoxton, Yarrowonga, Rangeview, Rogara and Bocoble have been introduced.

Progeny from our most recent additions feature in this year's catalogue and they have impressed us with their sound fleeces and structure and impressive carcase measurements.

From our small AI program, we have seen success with various Glendonald lines, Merrignee and Langdene genetics.

Sons of these three lines are performing well with positive synergy throughout the stud.

A major stud ewe program initiated over 10 years ago and overseen by stud adviser Rick Power, is now flowing through into the entire flock.

Our Thalabah type is bred for longevity and predictability.

We pride ourselves on producing a medium to large framed, well covered sheep with bulky, bright, soft handling fine to fine-medium wools.

They are bred in harsh conditions and will therefore thrive in any environment they are placed in.

We believe we are progressing here at Thalabah, but we haven't lost sight of the true Thalabah type and breeding an article that fits into the current sheep and wool industries.

This is a wool cut that fills bales and a carcase that sells in the sheepmeat market.

On behalf of Thalabah Merino Stud, we welcome you to our 18th on-property ram sale and would like to take this opportunity to thank you for your support and extend an invitation to join us for light refreshments at the conclusion of the sale.
